MISCELLANEOUS.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, MYSORE.

Notice.

It does not seem to be generally known that, under orders of Government, an Implement Depot is maintained by the Agricultural Department and its services do not seem to be utilised to the extent they might be. The ordinary agriculturist does not always know what implement to get, where to go and what price to pay for it. The depot is intended to save the purchaser all this trouble. It advises him with regard to the choice of an implement and sells it to him for a fair price. If it is not immediately available, it procures it for him from the manufacturers. The department is in addition always ready to give instruction in the use of implements.

It has happened sometimes that a prospective purchaser has come to buy a large sugar cane mill for example, a few days before he expects to start milling operations and has gone away disappointed as the depot had none in stock at the time. As obviously, it is not possible to stock implements in any quantity except ploughs and one or two other ordinary things for which a steady demand is known to exist, reasonable time should always be allowed. It is therefore requested that persons who desire to go in for improved agricultural implements other than ploughs and shares, will place their orders at least three months before they wish to use them. Orders may be sent either direct to the Department of Agriculture or through the Amildars of taluks.
